Two QII Examples

- Group Level: Shared Vision

Individual QII

Writing

How do you approach writing papers, proposals, etc?

- Three sample strategies
  1. Binge writing → deadline driven, large chunks of time, ignore everything else
  2. Regular, large chunks of time → save multi-hour block on a semi-regular basis (e.g., writing day of the week)
  3. Brief daily session → Small chunks of time regularly (e.g., 20-30 min/ work day)

Brief Regular Sessions (BRS) Advice

From Boice’s Writing Workshops:

- Control group (no change in writing habit. Occasional and in big chunks of time) ________
- Group 1 wrote daily and kept record ________
- Group 2 wrote daily, kept record, accountable to a colleague weekly ________
- Faculty who wrote daily spent about ___ time as those who wrote in big chunks of time, but wrote or edited ___ pages.
Some common threads from Boice

1. Work in brief, regular sessions.
2. Begin before you are ready.
3. Stop before you are done.
4. Wait actively.
5. Moderate negative thinking and strong attachments to the work.
6. Let others do some of the work

Group level: Shared Vision

What is the essential purpose, the true north, of your group?

First Things First, 1994
Q2: Shared vision reflection
Q2 helps the group and individuals within the group decide what is important

- What is the purpose of the group?
- What science questions are you asking?
- What is your form of inquiry and why?
- What is the environment you are creating?
- What is the culture and why do you want it that way?
- What is your organization’s true north?

The main thing is to keep the main thing the main thing

What are your BIG rocks?

Summary
