

ON-RAMPERS

On-Rampers are people with PhDs who transition from non-academic to faculty careers. Here are some famous On-Rampers. For more information about these On-Rampers, please click on their names to go to their websites.

NAME	INSTITUTION	FIELD
Cecilia Aragon	University of Washington	Human Centered Design & Engineering
Ender Ayanoglu	UC Irvine	Electrical Engineering/Computer Science
Lauren Berrings Davis	North Carolina Agricultural and Technical University	Industrial & Systems Engineering
Tina Eliassi-Rad	Northeastern University	Computer Science
Jingrui He	Arizona State University	Computer Science & Engineering
Jim Hermanson	University of Washington	Aeronautics & Astronautics
Lekelia Jenkins	Arizona State University	Future of Innovation in Society
Maryam Khanbagi	Santa Clara University	Electrical Engineering
Maria Klawe	Harvey Mudd College	Computer Science
Jelena Kovacevic	Carnegie Mellon University	Electrical & Computer Engineering/Biomedical Engineering
Jean Lee	Cal Poly	Materials Engineering
Fei Liu	University of Central Florida	Computer Science
Alex Ludtke	University of Washington	Statistics/Biostatistics
William Massey	Princeton University	Operations Research & Financial Engineering
Devin MacKenzie	University of Washington	Materials Science & Engineering
Marie Meter	Brandeis	Linguistics
Alshakim Nelson	University of Washington	Chemistry
Tina Ng	UC San Diego	Electrical & Computer Engineering
Martha Pollack	Cornell University	Computer Science
Jenn Rexford	Princeton University	Computer Science

Irem Tumer	Oregon State University	Mechanical, Industrial, & Manufacturing Engineering
Debra Wallace	University of South Carolina Beaufort	Physics/Astronomy
Jihui Yang	University of Washington	Materials Science & Engineering

If you know of other On-Rampers to add to this list, please let us know at advbic@uw.edu.